Sign Language Used At Deaf And Dumb Wedding

Aided by an interpreter, using the manual sign language, two deaf mutes were married before a gathering of about 200 at the Deaf and Dumb Church, South terrace, City, last night. They were Miss Phyllis Maggs, 26, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Maggs, of New Hindmarsh, and Mr. R. W. Poynter, 29, son of Captain W. H. Poynter, of the tug Foremost. The bridegroom is employed as a motor body builder at Holden's, and up till her marriage the bride worked as a dressmaker. Canon Frewin officiated, and Mr. A. G. H. Cox acted as interpreter.

Tonight there will be another deaf and dumb wedding at the church, the third this year, and another will take place in January.

and commerce to a large extent. There was uneconomic production of certain articles which Australia exported, and to grapple with the problems it was necessary to obtain all the expert and technical advice possible. The Government was guided by technical advice from all parts of the Empire and from industries and professions.
